CEO and chairman of Home Depot speaks at GSU

By McKenzie Ritchie
Staff Writer

There was a full house last Tuesday night at the Southern Center Auditorium to welcome Bernard Marcus, CEO, and chairman of the board of Home Depot, Inc., to the third annual Chick-Fil-A Distinguished Lecture Series.

Home Depot is the largest home center retailer in North America today.

Previously with Handy Dan Improvement Center, Inc., Marcus, with the aid of the stock holders of Handy Dan, created and founded this home retail giant in Atlanta in 1978. There are currently 450 operating centers in 35 states and 24 stores in three Canadian provinces.

Marcus said that the company had succeeded "because we have remained true to what we agreed to do in the beginning."

"Every single customer that came into our store was going to leave our store a satisfied customer," he said.

Marcus said that it is The Home Depot's mission to bring value to the consumer, to provide the cheapest prices and to have only the most qualified, friendly and intelligent workers.

Marcus personally trains and teaches them not only his philosophies and goals for the company but also required knowledge needed to run a successful retail center.

In addition to having Marcus as a guest speaker, Chick-Fil-A has previously invited other accredited business tycoons such as M. Douglas Ivester, president of Coca-Cola, and Horst Schultz, president of the Ritz Carlton.

McBride crowned homecoming king

By Farrah Senn
Staff Writer

Zan McBride was crowned the 1996 GSU homecoming king during the halftime activities at last Saturday's homecoming game versus East Tennessee State University.

McBride is a senior marketing major who hails from Atlanta.

"It's a great honor to be able to represent GSU and to represent my fraternity, Alpha Phi Alpha," McBride said.

McBride was escorted during the crowning by Mary Buchanan.

Heather Sewell, homecoming chair, and Jana Thompson, Miss GSU, presented McBride with his crown after he was announced as the winner.

McBride said he was nervous, but that he wasn't even thinking about winning.

"I was just proud to be on the court," he said.

McBride is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha, which was the first black fraternity on campus.

Alpha Phi Alpha was also the first ever black fraternity.

The highlight of the 1996 homecoming festivities was the crowning of Angelique Cobb as queen and Zan McBride as king.

Cobb captures title of queen

By Joshua Edmonson
News Editor

At halftime of last Saturday's homecoming game against East Tennessee State University, Angelique Cobb was crowned as the 1996 GSU homecoming queen.

"This is breath-taking," Cobb said. "Being homecoming queen means a lot to me. I will represent it well."

Cobb was escorted in the ceremony by her grandfather, Sammy Cobb.

Cobb received her crown and flowers from Nicholas Henry, president of GSU, and Kelly McElheny, last year's queen.

Cobb, a native of Atlanta, is a junior majoring in Early Childhood Education.

Cobb was sponsored by her sorority, Alpha Kappa Alpha. Alpha Kappa Alpha was the first black sorority at GSU and the first black sorority ever.

"First of all, I would like to thank God," Cobb said.

She said that she would also like to thank all the students for their support, all of GSU, and her sorority because "they backed me 100 percent."

Cobb said that she would especially like to thank her mother and father.

Hillel to present lectures, activities in honor of Jewish Awareness Week

By Emily Rollison
Staff Writer

In honor of Jewish Awareness Week, Hillel, the GSU Jewish student organization, is presenting several lectures to enhance the knowledge of the Jewish religion among all GSU students.

The week's activities began on Monday and will continue throughout the week concluding Saturday evening.

Monday's lecture, entitled "Rabbi Remembered," was presented by Zvi Vapni of the Israeli consul.

It was a tribute to the life of late Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the reaction within the Jewish community to his death.

Tonight, Bill Miesel will be presenting a lecture concerning Jewish mysticism at 7 p.m. in room 280 of the Russell Union.

Paula Solomon, Hillel co-advisor, is looking forward to Thursday's discussion of the book "Abe's Story" by author Joey Korn in the Union theater at 7 p.m. The book describes his father's Holocaust memoirs.

"WHAT IS HATEFUL DO NOT DO UNTO OTHERS."

--RABBI HILLEL

"The Holocaust is very significant to the Jews," Solomon said. "So is peace in the Middle East."

On Friday, Sabbath services will be held in room 280 of the Russell Union.

The week's activities will end Saturday with Havdalah (ending Sabbath) services at Sweetheart Circle.

Following the services, there will be a community social in the Williams Center Cafeteria.

Hillel is named after Rabbi Hillel who said "What is hateful do not do unto others." There are more than 100 Jewish students and 20 faculty members at GSU who participate in Hillel.

Although Hillel is for Jewish students and faculty, everyone is encouraged to participate in Hillel.

By Gin Starling
Staff Writer

The Georgia Coalition on Donation is coming to GSU this week to promote organ and tissue donation among college students.

The coalition will be conducting Greek Life/ Residence Hall Education Programs Nov. 4 through Nov. 8 and a celebrity witness signing will be held Nov. 6 at the Russell Union from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The celebrity witness signing will feature Sam Baker, athletic director, Jana Thompson, Miss GSU, Derek Burns, SGA president and the GSU Eagles and cheerleaders.

All of these individuals will be on hand to serve as witnesses for students who choose to sign organ donor cards.

These programs are a result of the Georgia Coalition on Donation's initiation of a public education program targeting colleges and universities across the state.

GSU is one of five schools the coalition will be visiting to help increase awareness about organ and tissue donation. Due to the coalition's efforts, Gov. Zell Miller has declared November to be College Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Month.

According to Leslie Wheeler, a spokesperson for the coalition, more than 48,000 people nationally are currently awaiting organ transplants. In Georgia alone, more than 900 people

Poll shows a dead heat for president among Georgia voters

The Associated Press

ATLANTA—President Clinton and Bob Dole are running neck-and-neck in Georgia, and the state's U.S. Senate race is also too close to call, according to a poll released Friday.

The poll of 809 likely voters shows Clinton with 45 percent of the vote and Dole with 44 percent.

The poll, by Mason-Dixon Political Media Research, had a margin of error of 3.5 percentage points.

Five percent of those polled said they would vote for Reform Party candidate Ross Perot and six percent were undecided.

In the race to succeed retiring Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the poll showed a dead-heat with 44 percent for Republican Guy Millner and 43 percent for Democrat Max Cleland. Thirteen percent were undecided.

Both races fell within the margin of error, making them statistical tossups.

The poll, conducted by telephone Tuesday and Wednesday, was commissioned by the Marietta Daily Journal, The Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, Thomson Newspapers and television stations WXIA in Atlanta, WRCB in Chattanooga, WJCL in Savannah and WAGT in Augusta.

The Mason-Dixon poll results were similar to those in an Atlanta Journal-Constitution poll conducted Oct. 26-30.

That poll, published Friday, showed 43 percent of respondents favoring Clinton and 40 percent for Dole.

Ten percent were undecided and 8 percent favored Reform Party candidate Ross Perot.

In the Senate contest, Millner received 47 percent and Cleland had 45 percent for Cleland, with 8 percent undecided. The poll had a margin of error of three percentage points.

Students smoked pot near police station

The Associated Press

KEY WEST— Three college students caught up in the revelry of Key West's Fantasy Festival say they didn't know they were leaning against the police station when they lit up a marijuana joint.

But not only were they puffing away on police grounds, they were also doing it under an air-conditioning intake.

"We were all sitting in our office and all of a sudden, heavy marijuana fumes started coming through the vents," detective Alfredo Vazquez said. "We went outside and found three men huddled in the bushes smoking away on a joint."

Only one of the men, Jason Maloney of Pompano Beach, was charged with marijuana possession.

If convicted, he could face a maximum of one year in prison for the misdemeanor.

"They say they didn't know it was a police building," Vazquez said.

More than 50,000 people packed the streets of Key West last weekend for the pre-Halloween carnival that has become known for its outrageous costumes, all-night parties and overall debauchery.

Police say 27 people were arrested during the festival, a low number compared to previous years.

Dogs finally get their day in court

The Associated Press

HARTFORD— A judiciary panel has decided it's better to let sleeping dogs lie than to draft a policy about pets in state courtrooms.

The decision was prompted by a woman's complaint of a Danbury judge who brought his golden retriever to work daily.

Barbara Monsky, of Danbury, said Judge Howard Moraghan's dog got a little too snooty with her while she was wearing a skirt and accused the dog of "aggressive nuzzling."

Monsky sued the judge in federal court in September.

But a 15-member executive committee of the Connecticut

Judicial Branch said there is no need to institute a policy regarding pets in courtrooms.

"I think their vote indicated they didn't think there was a problem that needed to be addressed at this time," said Chief Court Administrator Aaron Ment, an ex-officio member of the panel, which sets state policy on courthouse rules and procedures.

Monsky, meanwhile, had a bone to pick with the committee over its decision.

"My feeling is that the judiciary is in denial. They have the power to do everything they want," Monsky said.

"It has nothing to do with justice."

"What if everyone chose to bring all of their dogs to court? We'd have an animal house in court," Monsky said pointing at Moraghan's dog.

Her lawsuit accuses the judge of doing nothing to restrain the dog.

She claims she suffered emotional distress and was denied free access to the court.

Moraghan has stopped bringing the dog to court since the lawsuit was filed, the News-Times reported.

Photographer accused of not supplying wedding pictures

The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Newleyweds have accused a photographer of failing to give them mementos of their big days.

The photographer says she is too sick to fulfill her agreement to provide the wedding photos.

Eleven brides and two grooms appeared in the courtroom of District Justice Robert Tucker to complain about Laura Miller of Pittsburgh.

The newleyweds said they paid $1,000 or more to Miller but were given only a sheet with lots of miniature images or no photographs at all.

Ann Pepke said the contact sheet she was given didn't even have pictures of her and her husband. Leslie Hartman said her contact sheet from a Bat Mitzvah mysteriously displayed pictures of a bride whom she met at the hearing, Jane Dudley.

"I am so angry," Rachel Beres Payne said about Miller. "I want my money back. She is destroying people's lives. Your wedding day is one day in your life that you can never recreate."

Payne said Miller told her at 1 a.m. on Sept. 6, her wedding day, that she would not be able to take pictures.

Miller, who has taught photography classes at the Pittsburgh Center for the Arts, told Tucker she is being treated for manic depression and is trying to rebound from troubles including a divorce and a traffic accident.

"I am only human," she told the newleyweds. "I will make every effort to satisfy all your demands and honor your contracts."

Tucker said that Miller's landlord should be notified so he can help the women find the missing pictures. Just-wed Karen Harley said she should be given copies of the negatives from her wedding so someone else can process them.

"She has come up with so many excuses," she said. "If I could just get the negatives, I'd be satisfied. This was my wedding day, after all."

Principal ends a school tradition by not allowing football team nor cheerleaders to dress in drag

The Associated Press

NAUGATUCK, Conn. — The Naugatuck High School football team can't dress in drag anymore.

"It's offensive, embarrassing and in bad taste," principal Salvatore Catania said. "Years ago it was done, but today we are making a conscious effort to respect people's sex."

Every year, just before the big Thanksgiving Day game against Ansonia, a pep rally is held where football players dress like cheerleaders, even padding their chests with inflated balloons.

The cheerleaders get into it as well, dressing like football players.

But the cross-dressing must stop, said Catania, angering many of his students. About 100 protested by walking out of class.

"It's something that's been going on for years," Melissa Bochicchio said. "All our parents did it. They can't break tradition."

Elderly lady gets confused over house arrest sentence

The Associated Press

CARROLLTON, Ga. — When a judge sentenced 81-year-old Elsie Cannon to house arrest for repeated failure to clean up mounds of trash on some land she owns, he intended for her to serve it in her house in Lithia Springs.

Instead, she spent 2 1/2 weeks living in a car on the trash-filled property near Carrollton.

Carroll County Chief Magistrate Richard Smith released Ms. Cannon from the sentence after learning she had been staying in the car.

"This court would never, never confine anyone to an automobile," he said.

Carroll County authorities have been fighting with Ms. Cannon since 1987 over the collection of cardboard boxes, cans, bottles and other assorted junk she keeps on her four-acre tract in a semi-rural area of the west Georgia county.

Ms. Cannon and her daughters collect the junk and recycle it as a way of making money, but neighbors have complained for years about the unsightly mess.

By 1992, it had gotten so bad that the county cleaned the property itself.

Four thousand cubic yards of trash were buried at taxpayer expense, said Roger Bickford, director of codes enforcement for the county.

In June, Smith ordered her to clean the property in 45 days or face a $50-a-day fine until it was cleaned up.

When the cleanup had not been done by Oct. 4, Smith took more drastic measures.

He fined her $3,300, $50 for every day since his July 17 order and sentenced her to house arrest.

He also said she must pay the $10 daily cost of an electronic monitoring device to be attached to her leg to ensure she stayed at home.

Ms. Cannon, who lives with a daughter in Lithia Springs, said she decided to move into the car so she could be close to two other daughters who live on the Carroll County property and cook for her.

Ms. Cannon's attorney, Thomas M. West of Atlanta, said he believes she also thought the

"SHE PROBABLY GOT A LITTLE CONFUSED ABOUT WHAT WAS INTENDED."

—THOMAS WEST, ATTORNEY

judge was confining her to the Carroll County property.

"She probably got a little confused about what was intended," he said.

Smith said he learned of Ms. Cannon's situation when he returned from a 10-day trip. He ended the house arrest, and had Ms. Cannon brought back to court.

"When I ordered her to house arrest, it had been indicated to me in court that she had a house to go to," he said.

"She decided that her way of complying with this order was to stay in her car. When I heard about that, I told them immediately, 'No, I would never do that.'"

West said Ms. Cannon has returned to her home and is making plans to clean up the trash.

Publicity about the case has prompted volunteers to offer to help, he said.

Correct problems early

Two of the nation's athletic programs are correcting problems within their departments as soon as they are discovered.

This was evident last week when GSU's head football coach Frank Ellwood suspended 18 players for curfew violations.

Ellwood could possibly have postponed the suspension and dealt with it at the end of the season, but he decided that it was his duty to take action immediately.

The athletic program at Boston College has recently become scrutinized as well. BC is under investigation after allegations surfaced last week which claimed that some of the players have been placing bets on their games throughout this season.

At press time, BC was releasing little information and no one within the athletic department would disclose any of the findings to the press.

However, BC has asked the local district attorney's office to assist in the investigation.

In both cases, it seems that the athletic departments did exactly what is needed to correct problems within their departments.

Hopefully, both situations will have a happy ending. Other schools need to follow the same steps that both GSU and BC have taken to correct problems within their institutions as soon as they are detected, instead of simply hoping the problem will go away.

Lack of commuter parking spaces should be addressed

Editor,

I'm sure most of the commuters to GSU this year have noticed the problem with parking. It's common to wait twenty minutes in order to find an empty parking space. Why is it such a problem for commuters to find a parking space? I contacted the parking and transportation office to try to answer that question.

The people at the parking and transportation office were really helpful. They answered every question that I had about parking at GSU. The answers that I received, however, revealed the reasons that commuters have problems finding a parking space. The parking and transportation office has sold 6,020 parking permits to commuters this year. There are only 3,565 available spaces on campus for commuters to park in. Where are the other 2,455 people going to park?

"You have to take into account that not all students are on campus at the same time," the man from parking and transportation office told me. I also found that parking and transportation had sold a total of 1,406 permits for non-commuter parking. There are 1,841 spaces available for non-commuters to park in.

Why do non-commuters have a surplus of spaces, while there are almost two commuters for every one space available? It seems that the distribution of parking places at GSU needs to be evaluated by the parking and transportation office.

We must appreciate the good things in life

I'd like to take this opportunity to talk about some of life's good points.

First of all, we are in college. This is the one four-year (or maybe five- or six-year) period in our lives in which we get to enjoy freedom without having to work for it. Life is easy right now. All we have to do is try our best in class, and everything else will take care of itself.

Now, I know that many of you have part-time jobs, but how hard are they really? If you were to quit your current job, would you have to seriously worry about where your next meal would come from? That's not to mention having to provide for a family.

In a few short years, that's how it's going to be. We've been blessed with a golden opportunity, and we need to enjoy it while we can.

Next, we live in the United States. I get awfully tired of hearing people complain about this wonderful country of ours. I know I'm guilty of this, too, but there's no other country in the world in which I'd rather live. A lot of people take it for granted that our military gives us more security than any other country in the world. They also overlook the fact that our social class system allows more mobility than most nations.

RUSTY MCGUIRE

You've probably heard a few people griping about how they don't have equal opportunities. While that may be true, I'd like to encourage these people to try their luck elsewhere.

At least in America, people try to give everyone an equal chance. Try moving to China where communism reigns. America is the best country in the world, and if you're not happy here, you really should move.

Another reason to be happy about our lives is that we live in the South. For those of you who haven't had the chance to do a lot of traveling, believe me when I tell you that there are few places in this country as hospitable to the desires of a college student as the region south of the Mason-Dixon line.

The weather is moderate, people are nice, there is relatively little crime or pollution, and the girls here are beautiful. What more could you ask for?

Let's not neglect the simpler things for which we have to be thankful. If you are at college, it means that you were blessed with at least some intelligence.

It also means that somehow the necessary finances were made available to you that allow you to enjoy this great experience.

Did you ever stop to think that the reason why so many colleges are notorious for the parties that are thrown there is that students are usually in pretty good moods? We should get together and celebrate our good fortune.

College is also unique in that it provides a number of social opportunities that you won't find in any other station in life. Where else can you do things like party with your friends any day of the week or take a three-hour nap in the middle of the day?

I guess it's just coincidence that one of those is often the cause of the other.

Life is actually about as good as you want to make it. If you choose to make the most of yourself, I can guarantee you eventual happiness.

Life can be very hard at times, but what makes a person is the way he deals with such adversity.

We have been given a lot of advantages in life, and it's important that we appreciate them.

Sad to say, America needs affirmative action

On this election day, several states throughout the country will be voting on a number of amendments, and many of these proposals are igniting controversies.

California, in particular, will be closely watched. Not only will California residents be voting on the legalization of marijuana for medicinal purposes, an issue fraught with plenty of controversy in and of itself, but the state will also vote on Proposition #209, or its more popular name, the California Civil Rights Initiative.

The California Civil Rights Initiative states, in part, "The state shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to, any individual or group on the basis of race, sex, color, ethnicity, or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education, or public contracting."

In other words, the state wants to abolish affirmative action programs, which currently cost well in excess of $125 million a year.

Recently, this proposition has come under fire both for its somewhat misleading name, the Civil Rights Initiative, and for the use of snippets of Martin Luther King's speeches in ads endorsing the proposition. Many have argued that voters who do not understand this initiative and its implications might see the name, remember the ads using King's speech and vote for it, all the while believing they are doing something positive for minorities.

One might wonder why the initiative's backers would resort to such underhanded propaganda techniques. Perhaps they felt they had to in order to get such an initiative passed.

AMANDA CREWS

EDITOR

In a perfect world, this initiative would seem completely valid. Unfortunately, though, we don't live in a perfect world. At this point in our history, we cannot rely on the American government, employers or schools to hire or admit a fair number of women and minorities simply because they have "seen the error of their ways," so to speak.

Even with affirmative action policies in place, women and minorities are discriminated against. How many lawsuits are filed each year which claim that someone was not hired based on the person's gender or race? Granted, not all of these lawsuits make a valid claim, but many do. How many more would there be without affirmative action policies in place?

Throughout the centuries, there have probably been many more instances in which just the opposite happened.

Surprisingly enough, some white men have become very vocal in supporting affirmative action during the furor surrounding this initiative. In an article entitled, "Angry White Men for Affirmative Action," Paul Rockwell of Oakland, Ca., writes, "Special consideration may be valid or invalid, but preference for those perceived to be in need is a basic concept for American society."

A concept, he says, has been part of America for at least the past 50 years. Rockwell also says that America has consistently solved all of its problems through social engineering. Franklin Roosevelt implemented the New Deal, a social program aimed at getting many white Americans back to work. In the 1960s, college students received draft deferments, a form of preferential treatment, while those young men who could not go to college were sent off to war to die. Also, the GI Bill granted those men who returned from war the opportunity to re-enter mainstream America with a college education.

As if those programs aren't enough to prove that America is built upon preferential treatment programs, Rockwell points out that the U.S. Treasury gives up to $46 billion each year in homeowners' deductions.

So why do we protest any preferential treatment given to women and minorities when we have programs in place which give breaks to farmers, corporations, refugees and just about every other imaginable group in America?

According to King, affirmative action is not preference for race over race or gender over gender, but simply a preference for inclusion, equal opportunity and full democracy. Such policies benefit all Americans, male and female, white and non-white.

Inclusion? Equal opportunity? Full democracy? Sounds like a perfect world, huh? But if it were a perfect world, we wouldn't need affirmative action policies at all.

As the whole country awaits California's decision, we can at least be thankful that Georgia is not voting on this issue.

Your Opinion

Being white is not as easy as it may seem

Editor,
I would like to respond to the letter Lance Deen wrote (Oct. 24) as well as to the responses it has provoked in The George-Anne and on campus. I can understand how some of the things he wrote could be construed as offensive, but to suggest that he is "clueless" and/or "a problem ... to himself," as stated by Derrick Figures (Oct. 31) and Donita

Morris/Lakeisha Fair (Oct. 31) respectively, is both hypocritical and insensitive.

First of all, if you as a black audience assume that we as white people are so hopelessly stupid as to be unable to empathize with your dilemma, then don't assume that you can empathize with ours. For you see, contrary to popular belief, being white is not as easy as is generally perceived.

Due to our nation's past history, we have understandably had to become overly sensitive to every minority in our society. Being sensitive to everybody's feelings is not always easy or possible.

For those of you who dislike Lance Deen for what he wrote, I would like to pose a few questions. Do you know Lance Deen or the views of whites on this campus? Is it possible that the events that transpired in Players Club during Playerz Ball may have affected his attitudes or opinions?

I was at Players Club that day when a black individual called my girlfriend a "f---g bitch" after she asked him to get off of her car. I can say in all honesty that I was not pleased at this in any way. I am also sure that the individual in question did not care as to whether he was being sensitive to my girlfriend or not. It is also evident by the tone of the letters responding to Mr. Deen that the respondents were as concerned about offending Mr. Deen as they wish he might have been in responding to Mr. Clemons.

I did not read Stacy Clemons' column (Oct. 15), but I can infer its intent. Needless to say, there are as many places for black students to attend in Statesboro as there are for the white students.

The last time I checked, Legends did not have a sign posted saying, "Whites Only."

In addition, the Woodin Nickel serves beer to all paying customers. I am also confident that a slice of pizza in the Mel-low Mushroom does not know if it is being consumed by people of different races or ethnicities.

Ultimately, it is not the fault or responsibility of GSU or the city of Statesboro to provide a place for any of us to go on Friday and Saturday night.

If you have a problem in visiting one of these fine establishments, who is to blame? If you (and that means anybody) segregate yourselves, whose fault is that? GSU? Statesboro? The police? White people? Somebody, anybody, please tell me who to blame because I need to know.

Sure, I am not black, and I know and understand that it is not easy being black. However, if you are so different from other people that you cannot be understood, then don't get angry. Enlighten us. Please. If you don't, you as a people will never make any progress because nobody will be able to understand you when you try and do so.

Eagles inches shy of upset, fall to ETSU, 17-14

By Mike Davis
Sports Editor

If you've been around the GSU football program this year, you know how to deal with disappointment and despair, the could-have-beens and the would-have-beens, the ifs and onlys, the just-missed catches, the almost-blocks and the near-tackles.

You also know what it feels like to have the ball sitting inches away from the first down marker after a fourth and one play and the hopeless feeling as the clock ticks down to zeros. You also know the pain of being on the losing end.

GSU's game Saturday at Paulson Stadium was a mere image of the Eagles' whole season, as a tough-fought game resulted in yet another loss, this time by the slim margin of 17-14 to ninth-ranked and heavily-favored East Tennessee State.

"We came into this game knowing we had nothing to lose," said junior strong safety Hal Carter. "Years past, we've been the team everybody was gunning for, but ETSU came in as that team today."

"I just want to commend everybody on this team for stepping up a notch. We had to make up for the players who were suspended, and there were some young guys on this team who really played their hearts out."

The Bucs came into the Southern Conference contest averaging 34.3 points and 382 yards total offense.

And while they couldn't put up their usual numbers, it was the ability to answer the call of the big plays late in the game which lifted them past the severely limited Eagles.

"What I saw out there were 50 kids who tried," GSU coach Frank Ellwood said. "And I'm proud of them. I told them that in the locker room. Not because they lost because nobody is pleased with that, but because of their effort."

With the score 17-14 and just over six minutes left in the game, GSU quarterback Kenny Robinson called his own number on a fourth down and one but came up inches shy.

There, ETSU took possession and never relinquished it as they converted on four third-downs and one fourth-down to kill out the remaining time on the clock.

"Our offense had trouble adjusting at first," Ellwood said. "But ETSU came in with a good defense that is often overlooked because of their quarterback, Greg Ryan. They had a good team."

The Buccaneers wasted little time in jumping out to the early lead as the Ryan-led ETSU offense embarked on a 14-play, 89-yard drive that covered 4:28 on the clock. Brandon Walker, who finished the first quarter with 58 rushing yards, waltzed in from five yards out to finish off the first quarter scoring drive.

In that quarter alone, the Bucs tallied nine total first downs to GSU's one.

Eagle mistakes then directed ETSU to its next points, as freshman punter Chris Chambers was tackled after a fumbled snap, only to look up and see Buccaneer Adam Walton scampering 16 yards for the score.

GSU answered at the start of the third quarter with a drive that covered 61 yards with Bennie Cunningham, who had not scored since his touchdown against the University of Florida, taking the pitch from Robinson from one yard out and cutting the lead to seven after the PAT.

Mike Cavan's Bucs again wasted little time in making it a two-score lead as place-kicker Jerry Chapman connected on a 29-yard field goal.

FLEX-BONE ATTACK: GSU quarterback Kenny Robinson executes the flexbone offense that GSU has lived and died with. The Eagles fell to East Tennessee Saturday for their sixth loss of the season.

after crossing the goal-line from one yard out, keeping the Eagle hopes alive with time still left on the clock.

But the inability to convert on fourth and one left the Eagles with their sixth loss of the season and 10th all-time at Paulson Stadium.

"I think that despite the loss, the guys really stepped it up a level," said defensive end Cody Robinson, who had three tackles on the day. "But that doesn't make it any easier to take. We feel bad after this loss, especially since we had practiced so hard this past week. I really thought we could win this game."

Walker proved to be the backbreaker for ETSU, as he ran for 170 total yards on 37 carries, leading a team who has the reputation of scoring through the air. Ryan finished his day by connecting on 20 of 29 passes for 177 yards.

Junior fullback Roderick Russell continued to lead the Eagle rushing attack, as he pranced 94 yards on the day. Robinson ran for 77 yards, with his first positive yardage coming midway through the fourth quarter.

Defensively, Travis Taylor paved the way for GSU by racking up 12 tackles, four of those for a loss.

"There is nothing left to play now for is pride," Carter said. "Win, lose or draw, GSU is known for playing their hearts out. I hate the situation we are in, but we just have to continue to play hard."

GSU/ETSU SCORING SUMMARY

ETS 1 - 2:30, Walker 5 rush (Chapman, kick) (14 plays-89,) 7-0.

EAGLE SOCCER

Soderstrom leads soccer team in last home match

By Mike Gibbs
Staff Writer

On a windy but sunny day for men's soccer, the GSU Eagles closed out the regular season with an outstanding 5-2 victory over the Alabama A&M Bulldogs.

The Eagles fell behind early, giving up the first goal at the 4:54 mark of the first half.

But the rest of the game would belong to GSU as they came with the heat, pounding away on the Bulldog defense and applying pressure from every side of the field.

Senior striker Johan Soderstrom made the most of his last home game as he exited with an unforgettable performance.

He scored his first goal of the game at the 14:58 mark with the assist from Chris Starks.

The Bulldogs' defense weakened every time GSU controlled the ball.

"I got the ball in the far corner and just put it in the net," Soderstrom said about GSU's first goal of the game.

But his day was far from over. Soderstrom scored his second goal (21:21) with another feed from Chris Starks.

The Bulldogs began to show their frustration as Messele Geda was issued a red card and was directed to the bench, despite a late goal at the 57:59 mark from Damon Edwards.

Nonetheless, the momentum would shift back to the Eagles for the rest of the game as Soderstrom would score his third and final goal 59:05 in the second half.

Soderstrom finished his final game in front of the GSU crowd with a hat-trick.

"Chris (Starks) headed the ball and I just put it in," the senior said.

The goal from Soderstrom put the Eagles up for good, although the GSU scoring was not over yet.

Pat Parris, a junior defender from Ft. Stewart, added to the Eagles' lead by netting a goal with 85:47 showing on the GSU scoreboard.

"I got the ball from Jason Russell and I put it in," said the 6-foot, 2-inch junior. "Finally, a whole bunch of pressure was off my shoulders."

One of GSU's talented freshmen, Jeremy McClure from Dublin, Ga., scored the fifth and final goal (88:16) from Jason Russell.

"I just received a great pass from Jason Russell," McClure said.

"The guys played hard. We knew what we had to do" said Coach Chambers. "We had to be patient and knock the ball around."

The Eagles ended the regular season with a bang and are looking ahead for the Southern Conference Tournament.

"We will use this game as momentum for the tournament," Chambers said.

After a fine regular season, the Eagles will be looking for continued support when they travel to Greenville, S.C., for the conference clash on Nov. 8-10.

They will join the other five conference teams in gunning for last year's champion, Davidson College.

TOLLIVER TIME: Senior Rachel Tolliver made the most of her final home game by scoring a goal in the Lady Eagles' win over Appalachian State on Saturday. Tolliver and four other seniors will lead the Lady Eagles into the Southern Conference tournament this weekend.

After the match, Tolliver spoke about her emotions during her last home match as a Lady Eagle.

The greatest Eagle fan I've ever met

After the football game Saturday, the only thing Terry Miller could do was think about the old days of GSU football.

He pondered on those glory years, and a quick glance at the mostly-empty Paulson stands left him wondering where and when GSU football started its decline.

Never before would he have imagined that only 12,000 people would file into Paulson Stadium, or what he and many others like to call it, "Our House," to watch the beloved Eagles, much less leave at half-time after the homecoming king and queen announcement.

His pain was obvious, because he, a GSU alum, would have given anything to be where those students and fans were on Saturday.

A year after Miller graduated from GSU with his masters in print management, "a bald man named Erk" restarted the Eagle football program, and even though he was miles and miles away from the little town of Statesboro, Ga., Miller was committed to following this team from day one, just as if he had never left.

Homecoming games became a tradition for his return, and he always tried to make it back for those big games. That's all except for one.

"I wanted to come back so bad for the first national championship game because they were playing for it all," Miller said. "But I didn't want to jinx them. That was a year that I had been unable to go to any games, and since they had won just fine without me, I thought I would just keep it going and watch it on TV."

BEYOND THE ARC

MIKE DAVIS

And so he did. Those were the glory days, the ones where 24,000 screaming fans would pack "Our House" to see the Eagles. The days of GSU hard-nosed football. The days of ruling the I-AA ranks.

Miller sat at a table late Saturday night at a GSU alumni party wondering, where did we go wrong?

"Paulson Stadium used to be so electric with both stands packed with people," Miller said. "Teams used to come in here knowing they had hell to pay. It was an intimidating place. But we've lost it now. Today was the first time I've seen the Eagles lose in Paulson Stadium, and that was tough. Believe me, that was really tough."

"I think we were spoiled very early. I knew we wouldn't be able to win every game, every year. But I never thought I wouldn't see the fire in the players. Over the years, they've lost the fire GSU players once had, and some of that is attributed to dwindling fans' support. People don't realize that makes a big difference for a football team. They need to get back the GSU spirit."

Despite his heartbreak over where the program and support now stands, he is quick to admit how proud he was of the young Eagles on the field Saturday afternoon.

"They played very hard, and I don't think I've been any more prouder of GSU, even in the championship years," he said. "Those young guys gave it 130 percent. And that young kicker, to never have kicked in a game and get his red-shirt broken with three games left in the season, he was a champion in my mind."

And it's safe to say that Miller is qualified to determine who's a champion, for he's seen quite a few.

Late Saturday night, I sat at a computer realizing that I had just talked to the greatest GSU fan I had ever met. There was no doubt about it.

I think about what he said, about how GSU has comfortably taken a back seat behind schools like Marshall.

"We showed everybody how to build a program," Miller said. "We showed everybody how to build a stadium. We showed everybody how to hold and win a national championship. And other schools learned how to do it, but only better. We've let them excel past us. We watched them get better."

It was apparent to me that this man wasn't showing displeasure for the GSU football program. He was showing concern, concern for the team he will always support.

I laugh at one of the things he said to me before he left.

"Hey, you know that God is an Eagle fan, don't you," he said. "Look up at the sky and you'll see blue and white. He's gotta be an Eagle fan."

And that, my friends, is what GSU football is all about.

GSU SWIMMING

GSU swimmers and divers compete in the annual Blue/White meet Saturday

By Travis Walden
Staff Writer

The Hanner Natatorium was a spirit-filled place Saturday morning as the GSU swim team divided into separate teams and held the annual Blue/White intersquad meet.

Jon McNeil's blue team claimed victory over the white team, who was coached by Jennifer Gordon.

"We did the little things right," Blue coach McNeil said.

Great swims were posted on both sides and two pool records fell on Saturday.

Freshman Brad Mori broke the record for the 200 breaststroke with a time of 2:10.73.

Nicole Goodwin broke the pool record in the 50-yard freestyle by posting 24.10 in the event.

"There were a lot of great swims and some good unshaved times," Chaput said. "The team looks outstanding at this point of the season."

Best unshaved times were posted by the blue captain, Brian Gupton and the white captain, Kevin Volling.

"It was no surprise to me how great this team looks," Gupton said. "I feel great and we are expecting to just get better and better."

Gupton attributes his team's win on Saturday to the relay wins.

The white squad could not catch the blue team despite great performances by Jennifer Mayhew, who took both the 1000 yard free and the 500 yard free.

"This meet helps us figure out where we are at, look at some distance events and see some relays," said Chaput. "Overall, we looked good."

The Blue/White once again was a fun meet, but next week is when the Eagles get back to business as they head to Tallahassee, Fla., to take on Florida State,

Georgia Tech and Florida A&M. "FSU is tough," Goodwin said. "We beat them last time but that was here. Saturday we are going to need to keep swimming like we have been."

GSU FOOTBALL NOTEBOOK

Chambers' performance respectable

By Carolyn Wynn
Staff Writer

This weekend's 17-14 Homecoming loss took many Eagle fans by surprise. However, nobody was upset more than freshman place kicker, Chris Chambers. Chambers commended both the offense and defense for their performance. However, he was very critical of his own after he fumbled a snap which led to a 16-yard touchdown return by East Tennessee State.

"The offense and the defense both performed well," Chambers said. "They did everything they could. I am not as happy about my performance. I feel I could have done better."

Chambers' teammates were less critical of his performance. They countered the guilt Chambers was feeling with reassurance.

"Until now, he didn't have any experience punting the ball," Eagle quarterback Kenny Robinson said. "He has been place kicking and practicing as a redshirt. This was just his first game experience. We don't look back and blame the loss on anyone. That is just something that happens in a football game."

Chambers finished by punting for an average of 38.6 yards per punt, with his long coming off a 47-yard bomb. He also connected on two extra points.

Chambers lost his red-shirt as he was brought in to fill the vacant place kicking position after the suspension of sophomore place-kicker, Ronnie Stalnaker and back-up.

"I was a little disappointed about losing my redshirt, but I wanted to step in and help the best I could," Chambers said. "Coach Ellwood and I talked about it, and we tried to look at all the other options such as walk-ons, but no other options were available."

"I think the experience I gained in this game will help me next week and in the future," Chambers said.

FIRST TIME IN "OUR HOUSE": Saturday's loss to East Tennessee marks the first time since 1982 that the Eagles have lost a Homecoming game. It also is the first time GSU has lost a Homecoming game in Paulson Stadium. This loss marks the 10th loss ever in Paulson Stadium.

Mike Spilker

STEPPING UP: Freshman Chris Chambers turned in a respectable performance in his first game as the Eagles' kicker and punter.

The last Homecoming defeat happened on Oct. 30, 1982, in a game against Catawba College. The game was played on Statesboro High School's Lomax Field and ended in a final score of 10-7.

TWO YARDS SHY: Roderick Russell came into Saturday's game needing 95 yards to reach the precedent, 1,000 yard mark on the season. He finished with 93, which led the team but yet left him two short. Russell also was knocked for a one-yard loss during the course of the game, the first time he has run for negative yardage all season.

ALL IN THE FAMILY: Freshman linebacker Cody Robinson came out of the shadow of his older brother quarterback Kenny Robinson by making two big plays, one a critical stop in the third quarter.

"It is good having a good game, but nothing beats a victory," said the younger Robinson. "The game gave me the confidence to know that I can play."

"Cody really played well today,"

Kenny said. "He has been waiting on his chance to step up and make some things happen. He hasn't had much experience. I am proud of him."

BREAKING RECORDS: During Saturday's game Kenny Robinson moved into fifth place on the single season passing list with 930 yards.

This is the first time since 1989 when former Eagle Raymond Gross accomplished the same feat.

Maurice Bing, senior split end, also went into third place on the All-Time Single Season list for receptions with 30 catches. This edges out the 1984 record of Monty Sharpe.

STANDOUTS: Junior safety Hal Carter collected his third interception of his career during the second quarter of Saturday's game. This marks the second interception for Carter this year.

Also during this week's match up, freshman slotback Bennie Cunningham made his first touchdown since the Eagles' game against Florida earlier this season.

Eagle soccer loses to Furman in OT

By Scott Bates
Staff Writer

The GSU mens soccer team suffered a 4-2 loss Wednesday to the 16th ranked Furman Paladins.

Furman's Jeff Shavelson got things started by scoring to put the Paladins up 1-0.

In the second half, the defensive battle displayed in the first continued, as both teams were unable to put points on the board for the first 10 minutes.

Furman opened the second half scoring when junior Ryan Higginbotham beat the Eagles' keeper, giving the Paladins a 2-0 lead.

Things were not looking good for the Eagles until sophomore midfielder, Jason Russell, found the back of the net off the co-assist from Chris Starks and Kevin Hanfman.

With just under seven minutes to play in the game, Chris Sklar tied the score by knocking the ball in the corner of the net.

At the end of regulation, the teams were all tied up at two each.

Defense once again was the dominating factor in the first overtime period as neither team was able to break the 2-2 gridlock.

Early into the second overtime, darkness began to set in. And just as the lights began to fade the playing field, so did GSU's chances of coming away with a victory.

Furman's Paul Watts netted two quick goals to seal the win for the Paladins. The match was forced to end three minutes early due to the darkness.

"We played hard, and unfortunately, when the two top teams in the conference face off, there has to be a loser," said head coach Kevin Chambers.

The loss bumped GSU to third heading into this weekends Southern Conference Tournament.

"I'm proud of the effort," Chambers said. "We will use this game as momentum for the conference tournament."

Lady Eagles lose 25th of season

By Yolanda Gunn
Staff Writer

The Lady Eagle volleyball team fell to 1-25 on the season, 0-11 in conference play as they fell to Western Carolina, 3-2 (7-15, 15-7, 15-6, 14-16, 16-14) on Sunday, in what was another disappointing loss to add to the frustration of the season.

In the first game, the Lady Eagles rallied and maintained a tight grip with Western Carolina as they were knotted at 5-5. GSU then answered with three consecutive points to add to the lead and eventually take the opening win.

However, in the second game, GSU trailed Western Carolina 8-3. At the time GSU was unable to get the perfect set-up to regain their stamina. As a result, the Wildcats diminished the Eagles game plan by taking the second game 14-7 and tying the match at the intermission.

After dropping the third game, the Lady Eagles fought back and took the lead for the first time since the opening game. And like they've done several times before, they forced a fifth and final set.

But in that fifth set, it was Western Carolina who bounced out to the big lead, as an 8-1 margin looked to be too much of a deficit. But GSU regained consciousness and held the opportunity at hand, 13-12, to steal the game. But the Cats clawed at the Eagles and finally took home the victory, 16-14.

"It was a real battling job in this game," Coach Eddie Matthews said.

The Lady Eagles will now travel the short distance to Macon, Ga., to battle with non-conference foe, Mercer University, before returning home Friday to battle with Furman, in what will be their last home game of the regular season.

The Lady Eagles will return Nov. 22-24 to host the Southern Conference tournament.

GSU volleyball scalped by Lady Mocs, lose in heartbreaker

By Jennifer Holloway
Staff Writer

At Hanner Fieldhouse Saturday, the 1-23 Lady Eagles lost UT-Chattanooga, 3-1 (10-15, 15-5, 15-5, 18-16).

The Mocs took over the second and third games, winning both by the score of 15-5.

The fourth game of the match was a long battle for both teams. After several ties between the two, UTC finally came out on top of GSU 18-16.

"I think we surprised UTC by winning many long rallies in the third game," Lady Eagle head coach Eddie Matthews said.

Leading GSU offensively were two senior outside hitters, Staci Lewis and Jenn Lett. Lewis finished her performance by smashing down a team-leading 14 kills, while Lett had 13.

Heading up the Eagle defense was sophomore setter April

Rhodes with 12 digs.

Senior middle blocker Megan Pfeiffer also added to her career blocking record by picking up four blocks against UTC. She also had 13 kills.

"We started out flat, but stepped up in the third and fourth games to play with more intensity," UTC head coach Lisa Rhodes said. "This was an important conference match that we needed to win."

Travel through time and relive the past with the Society for Creative Anachronism

By Ebony Brown
Staff Writer

You have the opportunity to travel through time with the Society for Creative Anachronism (SCA).

Based on a person's interests in the medieval culture, one can actually research and recreate a specific time period.

"Many people take their own heritage and research from that," said Kristy Strickland, a participant in SCA.

However, this is not your average homework assignment.

Participants work at their own pace and trainers are available to assist them.

SCA allows you to gain the hands-on experience, ideal for success in your Western Civilization class.

"You learn the history, because you actually live the history. It gives you a better perspective on how they lived," said Adam Edenfield, a deputy herald in SCA.

These knights, lords and dames avoid stealing from the rich to give to the poor.

Instead they sponsor fundraisers for charitable organizations geared toward children.

"Last June we sponsored a drive and raised 600 toys in one weekend," Edenfield said.

The Society for Creative Anachronism provides students with an extensive amount of history and opportunity to learn and teach others.

Two Statesboro residents run for leukemia in Chicago

By LaTonya Plummer
Staff Writer

Running is a hobby for some, but others do it for fitness or just pure enjoyment.

Carolyn Lota and Dave Collins, both of Statesboro, ran in a marathon in Chicago, on Oct. 20, to aid in raising money for the Leukemia Society.

Lota, a 45-year-old health and physical education teacher at Marvin Pittman, is one of the many who participated in the annual LaSalle Banks Chicago marathon.

Lota finished the 26.2 mile race at 4 hours, 4 minutes, 15 seconds.

Lota said she was very nervous on race day.

"You never know what could go wrong," she said.

Although Lota did feel that she accomplished something at the end of the race, her motives for running were in honor of Frances Olgesby, a sixth-grader at Marvin Pittman, who was diagnosed with Leukemia a year ago.

Olgesby is a sixth-grade student at Marvin Pittman.

Lota began raising money in May, asking people to donate in honor of Olgesby.

By October, Lota's efforts had paid off and she had raised approximately $3200.

Lota did not go to Chicago alone.

Collins, an instructor at Ogeechee Tech, who received his master's degree from GSU in August, also participated in the marathon.

Besides running in the marathon to raise money and finishing at 5:18, Collins accomplished a personal feat.

--DAVE COLLINS, MARATHON RUNNER

"Running a marathon was a personal goal that I've had since college," he said.

However, it wasn't easy for Collins.

"There were times when I wanted to walk because of cramps," Collins said.

"It makes you reach down in yourself and pull something out that you thought you never had."

Collins never gave up and he raised a total of $2700 for his honored patient.

Collins and Lota had the chance to meet a lot of people from all over the world.

There were 32 runners from all over Georgia, but only seven were from the Savannah and Statesboro area.

All went to the marathon in search of the same goal.

Lota said that she enjoyed it and she would definitely participate again.

Collins also said that the experience was worth the effort.

"I found that in spite of all the pain and tiredness, you obtain the ability to push yourself to accomplish a goal," Collins said.

Experience history, nature at Skidaway Island State Park

By Drew Whelchel
Staff Writer

Are you the type that likes sand in your briefs?

If so, then an excursion to Skidaway Island State Park may be for you.

A mysterious and exciting escape, Skidaway offers a multitude of interesting activities for outdoor lovers and Discovery Channel gurus alike.

For those who like to rough it, the park had 88 pull-through camp sites for RVs.

For those students who don't pull a trailer to class, each site offers an elevated tent site, as well as a grill and picnic table.

The park also has a wonderful nature trail about one mile in length.

The trail winds through the island's marsh and wildlife areas, taking hikers by many interesting and beautiful sites.

Among these are a historical tour that gives a look at the pre-historic, colonial and Civil War influence felt by the island.

The trail also contains an observation deck to watch wildlife in their natural setting, so pack a picnic lunch.

If going for just the day is more your style, the park offers a swimming pool and about five group picnic shelters.

An oyster roaster is also available to rent.

This time of year is the best time to visit for camping, as the cold weather keeps the no-seesums down to a bare minimum, and hiking the trail in the summer can make one sweat off pounds.

The park also presents different activities during the different seasons, so call to find out the best weekend visit.

Whether you go for the day or for the entire weekend, Skidaway Island State Park offers wonders for those who love nature or just enjoy learning.

Directions: Take 1-16 to Savannah to exit 34 (I-516).

Follow I-516 until it turns into DeRenne Ave.

Continue straight until you come to Waters Ave.

Turn right and follow Waters straight for several miles until Skidaway State Park is on your right.

It is about a one hour drive.

Duke University food ranked highest among college campuses, West Point ranked lowest

By Estes Thompson
The Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C.—Bakers at Duke University make about 1,400 doughnuts a day. Students buy fewer than 100.

They want bagels, instead, so the pastries are sold off campus.

"They're good doughnuts," Executive Chef Cynthia Beck said this week. "But our business is in bagels. They're low fat."

The doughnut story illustrates a trend toward lighter, healthier eating that won Duke a top ranking for healthy food among 38 colleges and universities.

In January, Duke may begin making its own bagels because students buy about 3,600 a day.

The ranking was developed by the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine in Washington.

Dr. Andrew Nicholson, the committee director of preventive medicine, said the point of the first ranking of college eating was to inspire better eating by young people.

"The power of food is incredible," Nicholson said. "You start feeding kids hot dogs and hamburgers and the fat starts to accumulate.

It accumulates very slowly"

"YOU START FEEDING KIDS HOT DOGS AND HAMBURGERS AND THE FAT STARTS TO ACCUMULATE."

--ANDREW NICHOLSON, COMMITTEE DIRECTOR OF PREVENTIVE MEDICINE and reaches deadly levels later in life.

The committee solicited sample menus and other information from 20 top colleges recently featured in U.S. News & World Report, and included other schools in its ranking for geographical representation. Princeton, Cornell, the University of Chicago, Northwestern and the University of Virginia declined to provide information to the committee.

The University of Pennsylvania, where students can whip up their own stir-fry at a wok station offering goodies such as tofu and brown rice, came in second behind Duke.

Notre Dame, which offers a variety of self-service food bars with low-fat and vegetarian choices, was ranked third. Rounding out the top ten were Columbia, Brown, Stanford, the University of Kentucky, University of Minnesota, Amherst College and Smith College.

The worst schools were the three service academies: West Point dead last at 38th.

The group surveyed only the top colleges in the country.

West Point offers mostly "high-fat, high-cholesterol entrees like fried chicken tenders, ham steak or hot dogs," according to the survey.

At the Air Force Academy, food services chief Bev Donegon found the low ranking difficult to swallow.

Albany State University's new president tries to end isolation

By Elliott Minor
The Associated Press

ALBANY, Ga. — Portia Holmes Shields, the new president of Albany State University, is trying to end years of isolation at the historically black school.

She has launched programs to prepare future college students for tougher admission standards and is developing alliances that will help graduates succeed in the corporate world.

After only two months on the job, her energy and enthusiasm have made a hit with students. She attends student meetings and jogs regularly around the campus. Some call her a "guardian angel," and say she has made them proud of their school.

"I love it — the city, the pace, the work, the people," said Ms. Shields, a frequent speaker at civic meetings. "We are moving forward."

Arlethia Perry-Johnson, a spokeswoman for the University System of Georgia, said Ms. Shields has three major tasks: rebuilding from the flood, raising admissions standards and strengthening academic programs.

In the fall of 1994, the last year for which statistics are available, the average Scholastic Achievement Test score for freshmen at Albany State was 675, and 90.3 percent had to take remedial courses. For the University System as a whole, the average SAT score was 871 with 39.8 percent in remedial courses.

DONOR

are awaiting either organs or tissues.

"We want to encourage students to come out because there is a huge need for donors," Wheeler said. "Many people don't realize that one donor has the potential to save over 50 lives."

Wheeler wants students to be aware that the need for donors can affect anyone. Tawanda Moss, a GSU alumni, received a heart transplant at the age of 21. She will be at the Russell Union Wednesday to answer any questions students may have and to encourage students to consider being donors.

"If one person that day signs a donor card, it will be a success," Wheeler said.

By coming to GSU, the coalition hopes their program will help instill the concept that organ donor commitment is a fundamental personal response.

"The Coalition wants to start a conversation among the public, so that people who may not have thought to sign their driver's license will now be aware of the opportunity," Lisa Tunnell, chairperson of the coalition, said.

During the celebrity witness signing Wednesday, coalition spokespersons, including transplant recipients, living donors and their families, will be available at the union for interviews. They will be giving away free frisbees, cups, pins and life savors. Since Michael Jordan is the spokesman for organ and tissue donation, Jordan donor cards and posters will also be available.
